Carrie Sanneman (to Dan Turner): Hi Dan, we'll get underway here in just a few minutes. After Neil gives his introduction, we'll pass the screen to you

Carrie Sanneman (to All - Entire Audience): Hi everyone, thank you for your patience! We're shufflin tables to adapt to some technical difficulties and will get going in just a couple minutes.

Carrie Sanneman (to All - Entire Audience): Please feel free to use this chat window if you are having a hard time breaking in to ask questions during the meeting and I will relay them to the presenter/group.

Jon Gasik (to All - Entire Audience): Hi Carrie, there is a lot of rustling over the mic ni the room there...

Carrie Sanneman (to All - Entire Audience): Thanks Jon, let me know if it continues to be a problem

Jon Gasik (to Organizer(s) Only): Hi Carrie, I think that someone on the phone is making some breathing noises...

Carrie Sanneman (to All - Entire Audience): We are getting some wind or breath noise from one of the callers, if you could please mute yourselves when you are not speaking, that would be helpful. Thank you

Jon Gasik (to Organizer(s) Only): There appears to be someone on the phone who is not in the webinar. They are showing up as "phone caller". Very interesting...

Bob Rose (to All - Entire Audience): The Civil War postponed building the Washington Monument.

Carrie Sanneman (to All - Entire Audience): Any questions from the virtual audience?

Jon Gasik (to All - Entire Audience): I'd like to comment about contract length and permit holder risk.

Carrie Sanneman (to All - Entire Audience): Sorry Jon, I just saw your comment. I think we might be wrapping up. Do you still think it is critical to comment?

Jon Gasik (to All - Entire Audience): No problem, I just wanted to say that the permit holder is responsible for complying with the permit. So, they enter into shorter contracts at their own risk.
